against the bold escarpment of the Wasatch mountains.

And he didn't do it. The Tribune sputtered a little, like a man who has been the victim of a joke, and isn't just sure whether to laugh or get mad. And from that day to this it has been silent on the one chance it had to grab the Herald's prestige with the Taft managers.

Something very interesting, and very funny there. Congress should investigate.

But meantime, one must admit that Mr. Callister is a great man. Nothing less than that could have made Mr. Kearns keep silent when the proud position of only sincere advocate of Taft was within his reach.

ENTHUSIASM.

AT THE LIBERTY THEATRE last week a remarkable film showing Lincoln's Gettysburg address in picture and quotation was embellished by the pictures of several national figures.

After stirring the patriotism of the audience with the illustrated passages from that epic delivered by the great emancipator, the operator threw on the screen a picture of Col. Roosevelt. The audience applauded, small boys whistled and then cheers broke out.

Next came a picture of President Taft. There was a dignified echo of the first salutation. It was more or a tribute of courtesy than a show of enthusiasm; in truth, it was without spirit.

The third picture was that of Woodrow Wilson. It came in the midst of a lull. A cheer rocked the house and the applause rolled back and forth in waves.

If a vote had been taken in that house at that time Wilson would have been elected with Roosevelt a very close second.

The administration fellers are worrying about what the Progressives are going to do. Aside from it being none of their business, it may be apropos to state that the Progressives gave them a fairly good hint at Chicago.

Roosevelt is charged by the reactionary press of Utah with being a "menace to liberty." There will be a great many federal office holders at liberty if the Progressive cause shall prevail.

Now that it is all over many will agree with us that Flynn could not have put Johnson out with two pile drivers and one of P. Moran's steam shovels. That, however, is a layman's guess for only those who look to this department for their sporting guidance.

A state, according to Woolsey, is a community of persons living within certain limits of territory, under a permanent organization which aims to secure the prevalence of justice by self-imposed laws.—From the new text book for the rising generation, "Civil Government of Utah," by Prof. George

Thomas, professor of economics, Agricultural College of Utah.

The astounding discovery of today, observes Mr. Chief Justice Winslow of Wisconsin, becomes the familiar fact of tomorrow and the archaic curiosity of the day following. Wherefore, don't be a standpatter.

Speaking of the lovelorn fat man, there's Barnes and Penrose and Lorimer besides whatever may be found in Washington.

It will always be an open question as to whether Mr. Bryan emerged from Baltimore a hero or a humiliated discard.

E. N. Wilson, manager of the Co-Op. Furniture company, leaves this week for the furniture markets of the east where he will do considerable buying for his house. He will look over the offerings at Chicago, Grand Rapids and other cities.

BURGLAR VISITS GOVERNOR.

Governor William Spry is an early riser. That is why he encountered an early-morning visitor at his home Sunday at daybreak. The visitor was not on official business, by any means, but when he left he took several things of value as mementoes of his audience with the executive. Among them was a handsome watch that was presented to the governor by the state officials some time ago. Among others was a handful of change, not to mention a greenback or two. The governor is offering a reward for the return of the watch and probably will get it since it is engraved and could be detected the instant it is put up for sale.

UTAH WELL REPRESENTED.

On the roster of officers of the International Dry Farming Congress, which convenes at Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, from October 21 to 26 the Utah Agricultural College figures more prominently than any other institution. President of the Congress is Dr. John A. Widsow of the Utah Agricultural college. On the executive committee are Professors Lewis A. Merrill, director of the extension of the Agricultural college, W. M. Jardine, class of '04, who is now professor of agronomy in the Kansas State college, Professor F. D. Farrell of the class of '07, is secretary of the section of crops and breeding of the Congress. Professor Ed. H. Watson, class of 1911, is secretary of the farm management section of the Congress.
